Toward a Sound Sexuality

In an article of exceptional merit, Father Richard A. McCormick, S.J., of West Baden Springs, Indiana, examines the salient points of adolescent affection-development. Keeping his eye steadily on the needs of the practical ministry in confessional and extra-confessional direction, this well-known Jesuit-theologian-author advances convincing arguments for some re-examination of priestly attitudes in the matter of dating, petting, sin-consciousness and the right orientation of evolving sexuality in the young. In concluding his eminently valuable article, Father McCormick writes: "There are but a few brief and inadequate examples of the type of personal yet rational discussion which may help the adolescent to understand himself and his feeling, to see why certain conduct is sinful if it is, to distinguish between true love and instinct gratification and, in so doing, to perceive the real values of sexuality." HPR is convinced that you'll find this careful study of immense aid in your priestly ministry. Look for it in our December issue.
